Service as a Spanish medical interpreter at Mckay Dee hospital was a great experience. A medical interpreter has the opportunity of helping the patient feel comfortable in an environment where their language may not be spoken and their culture may not be practiced. Not only does the patient benefit from being able to feel comfortable and understand what is being said and done, but also the doctor will understand the situation better in order to treat the patient with the best care possible while also respecting their culture. This opportunity has helped me, as I am going into the medical field, understand how to properly help patients that may be of a different language or culture receive the best healthcare possible. All should be able to receive outstanding healthcare and with this experience I was able to make this possible and be able to do the same in the community in the future.
