THINK ABOUT IT:

1. What does civility mean to you?

2. What does civility look like at WSU? In the community? Nationally? Globally?

3. What does civil disobedience look like, sound like, feel like?

4. How does civility tie into ethical behavior and freedom of speech?

5. Who does civility affect besides yourself?

6. Who decides what is civil?

7. What are the limits of civility?

8. At what point does civility break down and why?

9. How do you practice civility, and what does that look like?

The Engaged Learning Series (ELS) is a Weber State University-wide series of events designed to engage students, faculty, staff and community in discussion, debate, dialogue, learning and action around an issue of public concern. For the 2017-2018 academic year, the series aims to raise awareness, impact personal behavior, and increase public engagement around the issue of CIVILITY through six prisms: culture, economy, education, health, politics and environment.
