Rights and Options

I think I was sexually assaulted …

When can I seek medical attention?
Ideally within 72 hours. You will be given a law enforcement case number, and given the option to speak with a police officer. A sexual assault nurse examiner can:

- Check you for injuries
- Discuss concerns such as sexually transmitted infections, HIV and pregnancy
- preserve evidence through a sexual assault forensic exam (it’s free and does not require a commitment to report)

A YCC or Safe Harbor advocate can be present to discuss reporting options and next steps with you.

Where to go
To have a forensic exam conducted by a Northern Utah Sexual Assault Nurse Examiner (NUSANE), contact:

- In Morgan or Weber County, contact the YCC: 801-392-7273 (24/7)
- In Davis County, contact Safe Harbor: 801-444-9161 (24/7)

Any time.

When can I go to the police?
Weber State University Police are available 24/7 to discuss your options, take a report, and put you in contact with a NUSANE for a forensic exam. You can:

- Report a sexual assault. Officers are prepared to believe you, listen without judgment and provide resources
- Have a support person, friend or advocate with you
- Speak with the WSU police even if the assault occurred off campus

WSU Police: 801-626-6460

When can I report the assault to the university?
Administrative investigations are conducted through the Title IX Coordinator Barry Gomberg (801-626-6240). You can also contact the Safe@Weber advocate Paige Davies (801-626-6372).

Interim measures may include:

- no contact orders
- modifications to campus housing or work
- academic accommodations

Any time.

When can I seek additional confidential support?
Counseling & Psychological Services (801-626-6406) are available to support you, listen to you and believe you.

Safe@Weber Advocacy Services (801-626-6372) provides a confidential advocate Monday through Friday (8 a.m. - 5 p.m.).
